Not bio-diesel, it will most likely be requirements on what type of engine the tugs and (if possible) the dredging equipment should have (Tier 2).

Tier 2 engines were required for the harbor deepening project. Dozens of pieces of equipment were retrofit, and the thought is that some should be available for use on this project. The use of an electric system may be worth exploring too, but I understand this may not be feasible. Do you know if the contractor plans to use an integrated dredge/barge? And would they bring in their own equipment, or use local pieces?

As I mentioned, I'm working with our expert on this in the region and should be able to get you some more definitive guidance soon (maybe even today).

Thanks,

Stephanie

I've contacted Bill Good, who coordinated the program. I'm hoping to be able to send you some names next week.

Thanks
